AN EXCELLENT PRODUCT.

Messrs. G. W. Cissel & Co., proprietors of the Arlington Roller Mills, Georgetown, are turning out several brands of high-grade roller process flour, but their White Lily Patent is fast becoming known as the most excellent brand of flour on the market. They grind Maryland and Virginia wheat entirely and Mr. Geo. W. Cissel, who is an expert judge of wheat in addition to being a man whose word is as good as gold itself, says those states produce the best wheat in the United States.

QUICK RESULTS.

N. Studer's seasonable announcement on 8th page appeared for the first time in our issue of Saturday, Nov. 3, 1900, and the responses were so prompt that on Tuesday, Nov. 6, he wrote the editor as follows:

Anacostia, D. C., Nov. 6, 1900.
Dear Sir:—Come over to-morrow. People want already more information in regard to varieties of stock, hence I will have to alter the adv.

Yours,
N. STUDER.
On Wednesday he ordered a much larger display adv., which will appear next week. Any square business man, who has something to offer that suburban people want, can use these columns to his financial advantage.

...THE LETTER...

Mr. W. A. Hahn,
Prop. Hahn's Reliable Dye House,
705 Ninth street, N. W.

Dear Sir:—We find you have been advertising in our columns constantly since July, 1890, when this paper was established.

You are the only business man who was with us then and still remains with us and since you have been advertising in our columns continuously for a period of more than ten years we naturally have a curiosity to know how well you are satisfied with the publicity we have given you.

Respectfully yours,
THE SUBURBAN CITIZEN.

THE REPLY.

A GREAT RAILWAY.

The Four-Thousand-Mile Road That Runs Through Siberia.

The most interesting portion of Russia's great 4,000-mile railway is the steam ferry across Lake Baikal in central Siberia. The lake, says the London Sphere, has an extent of over thirteen thousand square miles, and is more than twice as wide as the English channel at Dover. In places it is as deep as 4,500 feet, and parts of it have never been plumbed. It is surrounded by some of the hardest mountains which a railway engineer could encounter. The official plan of the Transiberian railway includes a railway round the southern end of the lake, to connect the two lake shore termini, but this enormous difficulty and expense, which is an important matter to Russia at the present time, of constructing such a line conspire to indefinitely postpone its completion. At present, therefore, the railway is broken in two by this huge Lake Baikal, the western shore terminus being at Baranskii, and the eastern at Misovaya. To link the two ends with a steam ferry which would be able to break through the ice which covers the lake from the middle of December to May was doubtless suggested by the excellent work of the Yermak ice-breaker in the Baltic. Sir William Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., of Newcastle, were the constructors of the Yermak, and to the order of the Russian government, they constructed a second and larger ice-breaker, which was christened the Baikal. The parts of the vessel were put together on the shores of the lake by the firm's engineers. It is curious that a railway first suggested to the Russian government by an Englishman should owe its most vital part to an English firm. The Baikal has three lines of rails laid upon her main deck to carry one passenger and two goods trains across the lake. The trains enter the ice-breaker at the bow, which is run up against a pier. The rails are connected and the trains run into the vessel. With this load she will crush her way through three feet of ice at a speed of thirteen knots an hour. A screw at a bow with a separate engine sucks away the water from underneath the ice at the bow, which thus splits from its own weight; the two stubby bladed propellers at the stern at the same time force the vessel through the broken ice sheet. The actual track of the Baikal measures thirty-nine miles. There is a harbor and lighthouse at the southwestern end of the lake, but there is no dock where the Baikal could be repaired in case of need. At present, therefore, Russia's 4,000-mile railway is absolutely dependent for a through journey on the reliability of a British-built railway ferry.

Preferred Lash to Prison.

Two young negroes who had stolen some clothing from a local merchant were convicted in Fulton, Mo., recently, and sentenced to four and six months respectively, in the county jail. Shortly the county attorney asked the boys in a jocular way which they preferred, their jail sentences or twenty-five lashes on the bare back. Each promptly answered that he would take the whipping. No more was thought of it by the officials, however, until several days later, when a note from the prisoners reached the prosecuting attorney, telling him that they were ready and anxious to take the whipping and get their release, and would promise to leave Fulton and never return. They were taken at their word. Constable Garner, who weighs 218 pounds, was hunted up, and the negroes were taken to the sheriff's office, where the big constable laid the lash on their bare backs in the old-fashioned way. Every blow from the rawhide made the darkies groan with pain, but they gamely took the punishment they had chosen and were given their release.
